DOMAČINI NA TRAINU

V soboto zjutraj je Hengalnica ponudila zabavo v escape tentu, v Gaju pa se je odvijalo popoldne v parku. Zvečer pa se je festivalsko dogajanje strnilo na dveh točkah, oziroma razkropilo po celem mestnem jedru, v obliki nočnega teka po ulicah Kranja.

Sama se na tek nisem prijavila, saj že tako skoraj vsak dan po precej podobni trasi tečem na avtobus, zato sem se raje pridružila koncertnemu dogajanju, pri tem pa še zdaleč nisem bila edina. Medtem ko so se nočni tekači potili na pet ali deset kilometrski progi, je ne-tako-zelo-fit mladina raje iztegovala vratove proti odru, se pozibavala v ritmu ter ubrano mučila glasilke in jetra na dveh težko pričakovanih koncertih. Medtem ko je Adi Smolar z svojimi besedili in vsem znanimi napevi zabaval KluBar in Slovenski trg, se je tudi na Trainstation Squatu zbrala pestra družba.

Krožno zbiranje pred Trainom je v soboto zvečer presenetilo mnogokaterega mimoidočega, ki ni razumel, zakaj neki se današnja mladina druži le v večjih ali manjših skupinah okrogle oblike, vendar pa je bil razlog precej verjetno koncert

Raggalutionov. Train (baje ponekod znan tudi kot drvarnica) je v soboto gostil še zadnjega v seriji koncertov ob predstavitvi njihovega novega albuma Gatekeeper. Na koncertu se je ob dobri glasbi združilo več generacij, še pred vhomom pa smo bili lahko deležni mnogih dobrot veganske kuhinje. Raggalution so dvorano povsem napolnili in uprizorili res fantastičen koncert, verjetno posebej zaradi dejstva, da so člani Kranjčani in so na Trainu skoraj doma, zato so jih v velikem številu prišli podpret domači in prijatelji. Poplesavali in zabavali smo se ob ritmičnih komadov, ki jih lahko slišimo na obeh albumih. Vzdušje je bilo zaradi domače dvorane in znanih obrazov res super ali, kot je jedrnato dejal M. V., naključno intervjuvani obiskovalec koncerta: »Ful je blo dobr.«

Po zaključenem koncertu je na Trainu publiko prevzel koprski DJ crew Freedom Fighters Sound, če pa smo pohiteli na Slovenski trg ali v Klubar, smo lahko še ujeli nastop Adija Smolarja, ki je ravno pel, kako daleč je zanj pomlad.

THE ICEBERG MODEL

After starting the day with an interactive game, we attended a workshop where we learnt loads about the iceberg model of culture. The workshop was led by Ursa and Katia, who guided us through the process of finding different aspects that make up culture. We also divided these aspects into visible and invisible ones, and applied it to our own countries. It was interesting to discover the different elements between the foundations of the countries and it allowed us to better understand each other's behaviour. Later on, we were lucky to attend lunch at an amazing location overlooking the nature around Kranj. For the afternoon, we started preparing our games for the intercultural playground, and enjoyed some free time at Hengalnica, playing football and chill. Following dinner, a bunch of us participated in the Nočni Tek on the streets of Kranj where we made use of all our remaining energy while representing our different countries.

HIKING OPPORTUNITY FOR ERASMUS EXCHANGE STUDENTS

On a sunny Sunday morning, international participants from Malta, Germany, Croatia and Slovenia headed off for an adventure to Sveti Jošt nad Kranjem. At first the weather was very sunny and hot and got them dripping in sweat right from the start. Due to lack of experience, the Maltese team struggled to keep up with the rest of the group, so luckily for everyone there were many breaks on the way to the top. Once they reached the top, they experienced breath-taking views but were quickly greeted by rain which meant that the participants were inclined to have lunch under shelter. Since the rain kept on going for a couple of hours, they had to take the long route down in order to avoid muddy surface as it was also safer. Despite the weather conditions all the participants were satisfied with this experience in Slovenian mountains.
